

I am totally against allowing cell phone use on airplanes. The already close quarters on board the aircraft would become that much closer and stressful if passengers were chatting all around. We need to stop this before it gets started. The aircraft attendants already have enough to do without being made to control noisy neighbors too, and we all know that would be the case. We may even see air rage to a much larger degree than we already do.